

CS2800 Lecture Activity, September 16

Write an “About” page for yourself, named yourLastName_about.html. Include the following:

- A head section that includes the charset and title
- A header section that uses an h1 heading to display your name
- A main section that includes the following:
 - An h1 heading within the main section that says “About me”
 - An image of yourself. You may take an image with your cell phone and upload it/email it to yourself so you can access it on the lab computer. Open the image with Microsoft office and resize it to 100 pixels wide (height should be between 100 and 150) before using; be sure to specify the width as 100 in your html tag.
 - Two paragraphs introducing yourself (do not include any personal information you would rather not share; your major, where you went to high school, hobbies, sports, or special interests, and similar info is fine)
 - A list of classes you are currently taking; put an h2 heading above this list to title it; list at least 3 classes, make things up if necessary
- A footer containing an email link (use your Wright State email address). This is covered in chapter 7 of your text. Here is an example:
`Email me!`

Be sure you include the standard parts of a web page – DOCTYPE, html, head with title and charset specified, body with header, main, and footer.

Validate your work when you are finished. Be sure you are validating for HTML5.

Show your instructor your work when you are finished.

Save your work!! You will use it again next week when we begin styling with css.
